Dear Greg Thorpe:

I am writing to apply to the summer position of Software Developer Intern as advertised on your website, for which I have attached my most up-to-date resume.

I consider myself as a highly capable potential candidate with many skills and experience that will be of use to your company. I have developed skills in a wide range of programming languages and frameworks and have demonstrated this capability throughout my participation in computer science, IT and cybersecurity activities. I feel I am a good fit because of my ability to work both in groups, and independently whenever needed with no supervision. It is for this reason I have completed many projects in groups with school members. I also believe I am a good fit with this team based on the fact I am competent on both ends of the programming spectrum, frontend and backend. As stated in my resume, I am comfortable using web development frameworks such as Node, .NET, and React. I am also experienced in object-oriented programming with languages such as python, Java, and C#.

I am sure after appraisal of my resume you will see I am an individual with excellent potential in an organization such as yours. In addition to the skills I listed, I also have an excellent work ethic, personality, and tenacious attitude. I look forward to hearing from you in due course.

Sincerely,

Abdirahman Ali
